

Initial Style Guide

February 19, 2020

Introduction

As Marbles continues to grow, both as a Kids Museum and an organization, we are faced with three challenges: assessing and refining the Marbles brand identity, applying the identity cohesively, and ensuring it's flexible enough to grow. This initial style guide is a jumping off point for new directions that evolve and extend the Marbles brand.

Goals

Evolution

Any new Marbles brand elements should be consistent with the history and values of the brand.

Accessibility

All Marbles materials, from the logo to signage to the website, need to be easy to read and simple to comprehend.

Consistency

Marbles brand guidelines should provide a roadmap for consistent application of the brand through graphic design, messaging, and content.

Sustainability

The new Marbles branding needs to extend current efforts and provide a framework for expansion.

Logo

To make the Marbles logo more contemporary, to maximize legibility across media, and to better connect to other brand properties and sub-brands, the new logo has been simplified. The basic concept of the logo is unchanged, ensuring that the new and the old logo can live side-by-side as gradual brand updates are implemented.

Updates

- The marbles (planets/bubbles/molecules/balls) are now dynamic, bouncing above the wordmark instead of tucking behind it
- The letters are no longer overlapping and are solid purple
- The curve of the baseline of the word Marbles has been decreased to allow for the lettering under the mark to be on a straight baseline

A purple drawstring bag is centered against a teal background. The bag has two grey drawstrings extending outwards. In the center of the bag, there is a logo consisting of three colored circles (cyan, yellow, and red) arranged in a triangle above the word "Marbles" in a white, bold, sans-serif font. Below "Marbles" is the text "KIDS MUSEUM" in a smaller, white, bold, sans-serif font.

Sub-brands

Recurring events and other sub-brands can have their own personalities, while still being on-brand. The text-only version of the Marbles logo supports the structure of the subbrand logos. Marbles characters created from the Marbles brand palette are included to help tell the story of the event.

Features

- All type treatments follow the same structure, with variations in color
- New branded characters bring each logo to life
