

RIZZO CENTER

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT CHAPEL HILL

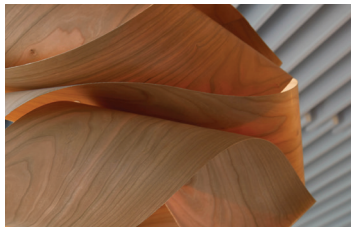

UNDENIABLY SOUTHERN

IRREFUTABLY

MODERN

RIZZO Center lies where a country estate greets a modern conference center and idyllic hilltops merge with a stylish hotel. Where Southern hospitality and a commitment to education thrive just minutes from the main campus of The University of North Carolina and Chapel Hill's quaint, yet vibrant downtown.

BACKGROUND

Rizzo Center is located on the property of The DuBose Home & Gardens, a rural country estate built in the 1930s. At this historic site, UNC's Kenan-Flagler Business School established a residential conference center for world-class executive leadership development.

Comfort, technology and amenity upgrades make it a welcoming place of rediscovery—of the joy of life, the joy of learning and a sense of Southern hospitality.

HISTORY

The property's history dates back to the 1750's when Virginian William Barbee received two land grants in North Carolina's Chapel Hill-Durham area, where Rizzo Center now resides. Barbee's son, Christopher, was still working a plantation on this hilltop in 1789, the same year George Washington became the first U.S. President, and the year The University of North Carolina received its charter as the nation's first public university. In 1791 it was the younger Barbee himself who deeded 221 acres to UNC trustees, acreage which became the heart of The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Accommodations are presented in McLean Hall, a contemporary three story building set along the property's edge. Perched on the hill, all 183 casually elegant rooms and suites feature distinct spaces for study and relaxation. All include 24 hour access to guest pantries stocked with complimentary snacks, frozen treats and beverages, coffee and tea stations and commercial grade laundry machines.

Sleek new interiors and high-tech flourishes—including data ports, Wi-Fi, and TVs with laptop access—provide guests with creature comforts designed to enhance focus.

Property amenities include a pool complex and spacious courtyard, outdoor lounge areas with fire pit and a 2,000 sq. ft. state-of-the-art fitness center, all designed to make the Rizzo Center experience sophisticated and productive.

The historic DuBose House across the courtyard offers a striking juxtaposition between modern amenities and the buildings stately, historic presence. A few select suites are open to guests, where one can harken back to a different era without giving up high-count cotton sheets and high-speed Internet. It's the very definition of the "best of both worlds."

MEETINGS AND EDUCATION

With spaces in both McLean and Loudermilk Hall, Rizzo Center's efficient, contemporary meeting spaces offer the latest speaker-controlled presentation screens, comprehensive AV capabilities and tech support onsite.

Roomy meeting spaces are lined with whiteboards that bracket flat screens and sport ergonomic seating and targeted task lighting. An abundance of surrounding study areas and breakout rooms accommodate team projects. Linking these purposeful spaces are public areas fitted with soft-touch seating for continued collaboration and private spaces that facilitate needed breaks.

Common areas are comfortably appointed, with seating areas that open up to a covered exterior terrace overlooking the wooded terrain of Meadowmont.

Loudermilk Hall features three tiered amphitheaters, 21 breakout rooms and a dedicated, flat-floored multi-purpose space that allows for easy partitioning.
